How

TO REPORT OR TO IDENTIFY A HATE CRIME...

- If a person has shown a hostile attitude towards you on grounds of your race, sexual orientation, gender identity, religion or belief, or disability, that person has committed a hate crime.
- Don't remain indifferent to hate crimes. Don't be afraid. Report them as soon as possible.
- Racist or xenophobic insults can also be considered a crime.
- Don't ignore the messages or offences posted in your social network profile pages, or sent to your email address or your mobile phone.
- When you report, specify the exact words or comments made by that person.
- Don't forget to tell the police or the Guardia Civil anything that you think is important (symbols, anagrams, tattoos, apparel of that person, witnesses of the acts, etc.). Anything.
